The unique Lost Buoy vineyards lie atop the rugged limestone cliffs of Port Willunga in the world-renowned McLaren Vale. The shoreline of Port Willunga is serene and beautiful, but in winter months can become a dark and treacherous landscape. Several great iconic ships in South Australia's history have ran aground or sank at the door step of the Lost Buoy vineyard, with some crew lost only meters from shore. The Lost Buoy vines, once too almost lost (to property developers), was born again when the local Kelley family stepped in to rescue the vines in November 2011. And so the Lost Buoy story begins...

TERRES DOREES

JEAN-PAUL BRUN

He is one of the most revered vignerons in this appellation, making wines of great purity and extraordinary flavour. Even his entry level Beaujolais wines are full of interest. Jean-Paul now has approximately 50 hectares of vines in and around the village of Charnay in the southern part of Beaujolais. He produces almost 400,000 bottles of wine each year and 55% of his production is sold to overseas importers. He made his first wines in 1977 and has been producing wine every year since and will soon preside over his 40th vintage!

This is a challenge that Umberto Cesari eagerly took up in the 1960s, with 20 hectares of vineyards right in the very heart of Emilia Romagna.

Over the years, he was able to add other vineyards, different grape varieties, and unprecedented, exceptional new wines. Over all those years, though, one thing remains unchanged: his passion for wine.

SANFORD

WINERY & VINEYARDS

In Santa Barbara wine country, it all started with Sanford. In 1971 Sanford Winery and Vineyards discovered an overlooked, grape-growing treasure in the Santa Rita Hills. Recognizing a magical combination of climate and soil conditions much like those in France's famed Burgundy province, Sanford planted the area's first Pinot Noir in its Sanford & Benedict vineyard. Pinot Noir has thrived in the Santa Rita Hills ever since, and so has Sanford Winery.
